STATEMENT OF UNDERSTANDING

OUR PRACTITIONERS: Seneca Anderson, L.Ac., Alice Honican, L.Ac., Anna Powers, ND, Cristina McMullen, ND, Lis Frey, HHP, DO NOT represent themselves as medical doctors. The Longevity Health Center encourages you to see your physician if you are interested in medical diagnosis and treatment.

The modalities employed by Longevity Health Center practitioners are not approved for any sort of medical evaluation. Acupuncture point evaluation will reveal "disturbance signals" for bacteria, viruses, environmental pollutants, etc. Our experience is that often times these "disturbance signals" cannot be corroborated by standard laboratory testing. Our clients usually want to know what sorts of disturbances their acupuncture point evaluation reveals, and we at Longevity Health Center believe our clients have the right to know the results of their testing. This evaluation should in no way be construed as a medical diagnosis. This is simply information we utilize in guiding our course of treatment.

I understand that neither Seneca Anderson, L.Ac., Alice Honican, L.Ac. or any of the Longevity associates or staff are medical doctors. I choose to undergo an evaluation and treatment in accordance with oriental medical principles, utilizing techniques of traditional and modern acupuncture.

I have read and understand this STATEMENT OF UNDERSTANDING.

What is a Bio Energetic Evaluation?

Bio energetic regulation begins with the premise that the body's bioelectrical system is the governing system of the body. This can be substantiated by physiological fact. We know that the heart beats due to electrical irritation on its wall, and most of us are aware that death occurs when brain wave function ceases. The importance of biophysics to health is by no means new. This idea is the theoretical basis of traditional Chinese medicine, which is over 4,000 years old.

Homeopathy, which was developed over 200 years ago in Germany, also impacts upon the energetic system of the body. Animal, plant and mineral substances are diluted, often beyond the point where a molecule of the initial substance can still remain. Paradoxically, these diluted substances have greater impact the more times they are diluted. Obviously, this can't be comprehended chemically; the action is energetic.

Rhinehold Voll, MD, is credited with the development of modern bio energetic medicine. He developed equipment capable of electronically locating acupuncture points. He then correlated these points with anatomical parts of the body and physiological functions, thereby synthesizing western science with the centuries-old traditions of Oriental medicine. This was no small achievement. A practitioner trained in utilizing this approach can now functionally assess almost every part of the body in a non-invasive manner by simply taking measurements upon the surface of the skin. There are many thousands of practitioners utilizing these techniques today. As many as one out of three physicians in Europe employ homeopathic medicines in their practices.

This system of health care is growing rapidly in the United States. Most homeopathic pharmacies are enjoying unparalleled growth, and many new companies are forming each year. Hundreds of practitioners are now utilizing these test methods, and the opposition to them by the medical pharmaceutical cartel will no doubt be dispelled as consumers learn of the viability of this approach in overcoming the kinds of health problems plaguing us today.

What Will the Testing Reveal?

The qualified practitioner can determine which parts of the body are functionally stressed, and, most importantly, where the major disturbances are located. Treatment progresses very quickly with this information. Additionally, the major underlying causes of the disturbances are routinely uncovered, enabling the practitioner to treat the cause of the problem, and not merely offer palliative relief. Other factors routinely assessed include: vitamin and mineral deficiencies, food & airborne sensitivities and psychological stress. Finally, the remedies selected can be checked for compatibility with the patient.

The bio energetic testing technologies that our practitioners utilize are safe, painless, and completely non-invasive. The tests can be performed daily without endangering either the subject or the practitioner.
